Program Guidelines

Welcome to your Doctor of Ministry program!

This handbook provides specific details of the program – read them carefully, so that there are no surprises as you move through your study venture.

Please ensure you also read carefully general guidelines for students from the seminary through which you are registered for this program – that information will complement what you read here.

If there is further information you would like to see included in this handbook, please let us know, so that it can be of maximum value for you and your peers in your study program – as well as future participants.

In the Kingdom's ventures.

Doctor of Ministry in Leadership

Program objectives

This Doctor of Ministry program seeks to integrate structured theological reflection and critical thinking on ministerial practice, to provide a formative space for participants to learn, dialogue, challenge, discern and shape their ministry philosophy and practices.

Our DMin is designed to produce graduates who are more competent and passionate reflective ministry practitioners, and who ...

... have enhanced skills for ministry, e.g. in preaching, teaching, formation and discipleship.

... are better equipped to assess analytically and think theologically about contemporary ministry issues.

... have a deeper biblical and theological of pastoral ministry and leadership.

... possess expanded leadership, relational and conflict resolution skills.

... are realising their own personal formation and spiritual maturity.

Graduates are likely to continue in (or take up new) pastoral and leadership ministry positions in their churches and organisations. They are also likely to be invited to teach applied courses in theological education institutions and other ministry situations.

We anticipate that this program, once there are graduates in it, will be accredited by the Asia Theological Association (ATA). The ATA guidelines for the purpose and nature of professional doctorates like our DMin program are these:

Programs granting the Professional Doctorate degree are designed to prepare the graduates for a qualitatively enriched practice of ministry and to function as leaders in denominational and parachurch agencies, and as Christian ministry trainers. Each of these also includes sophisticated academic and research components.

(Manual for Accreditation, ATA, 2013, p. 37).

Program components

To achieve the objectives of the DMin program the following components are built in:

	AGST Alliance	BCM/MBS
• Coursework modules
Christian thinking and ministry practice	4 credits	5 credits
Approaches and practices for ministry-based research	4 credits	5 credits
Other modules (4/5 credits per module)	16 credits	20 credits
• Dissertation	12 credits	15 credits
TOTAL	36 credits	45 credits
Note: the credit-structure for the AGST Alliance DMin is 36 credits, while it is 45 credits for the BCM/MBS programs. The programs are identical, but the credit values are calculated differently. 'Same workload, same final outcome, different credits'. The workload for each module is in the range of 200-280 hours. This is an estimate of all the learning activity engaged in: e.g. pre-campus reading and preparation, on-campus sessions participation, post-campus reading and assignment preparation, etc. The relatively wide range of hours reflects the challenges for many of our students studying in English.

1. Coursework modules

You must complete two core (= compulsory) modules: Christian thinking and ministry practice and Approaches and practices for ministry-based research. The other modules are not compulsory to complete the program – although you are encouraged to take them if you wish to complete the DMin in the shortest possible time.

One coursework module will be offered each half year. The modules themselves span about four months, and entail pre-campus learning activity, a six day on-campus intensive session, and post-campus assignment activities.

See the range of module topics for the program on your seminary website.

The on-campus intensives run from Thursday to Tuesday. This intentionally includes Sunday, which will be a day for reflection, spiritual formation activities, corporate worship and sharing, and some recreation.

We will also strongly encourage you to undertake further spiritual development processes during your DMin program, but these activities won't have credit value.

2. Dissertation

The dissertation is designed to demonstrate your competence to integrate the theory of the various disciplines drawn on for Christian ministry with your ministry practice. It will comprise an original applied research project that demonstrates sound Christian reflection and which is designed to enhance informed and improved personal and organisational practices.

The length of the dissertation will normally fall in the range of 30,000–45,000 words (excluding references and appendices, but including footnotes), depending on the nature of the research.

A successful DMin dissertation will reflect original research, in candidates' church/organisational/professional sphere. The dissertation may take one of a variety of forms, tailored to your interests and ministry setting. While it may be conceptual-theoretical research, it will more likely be of an applied nature, with implications for senior leadership in professional and/or policy areas. Hence, it is likely to have a significant quantitative or qualitative research element to it.

While you may come into the DMin program with an idea of the area you want to focus on for your dissertation, you will be encouraged to firm this up after you have a sense of the broad panorama of the program. This will also enable you to maximise the focus of your coursework module assignments.

The dissertation will probably require 15-18 months work after you complete the coursework. A supervisor will journey with you through the dissertation process.

Two competent external examiners will be appointed to examine the submitted dissertation.

Details of the dissertation are available in a separate set of guidelines.

Program practical details

The FAQs on the DMin pages of the seminaries' websites cover many of the practical details of this program. We'll review the major ones in this section.

1. Module dates

See the dates of the modules on your seminary's website.

2. Location of on-campus sessions

The on-campus sessions of the modules are usually conducted on the campus of BCM, MBS, or another seminary campus in Malaysia. It is also possible that other non-campus locations or a seminary in another country may be used occasionally, to fit our needs.

Note: You need to budget for the cost of travel and living expenses for the on-campus sessions. Budget airlines help ease the travel costs. We will suggest possibilities for accommodation, but usually participants are responsible for making the specific arrangements.

3. Participation

The DMin is a semi-cohort program: You will be with a group of participants most of whom will proceed through the coursework together. So you will be able to share your experiences and challenges with others to maximise your learning venture as you interact and 'contextualise' with them - and they are likely to become friends and colleagues to network with after the program.

If you miss some of the on-campus sessions of a module for genuine reasons, you may be given some directed studies to take the place of the missed elements of the module. But if you miss all the on-campus sessions, you are unlikely to be allowed to complete the module. You will need to discuss this with the program director in the first instance.

4. Program marker points

All DMin candidates enter the coursework phase of the program on a two-module probationary basis: continuation is contingent on adequate attendance at, and participation in the modules, and satisfactory completion of the assessable work.

There will be a pre-dissertation review, after you complete the modules, to confirm that you may proceed with the dissertation phase of your program. If your coursework grades are not sufficiently high or we are aware of other factors which make us doubt that you are likely to be able to complete the dissertation at an appropriate level and in good time, you may be awarded another qualification (the AGST Alliance and BCM Post-Graduate Diploma in Ministry; or the MBS equivalent).

In the dissertation phase there are two marker points:

- Initially, you need to submit, and have endorsed by our DMin Program Committee, a focus of interest for your proposed topic.
- Your formal dissertation proposal is a further program marker, submitted some months into your research. Your proposal must be approved by our DMin Program Committee in order to continue with your dissertation process.

In the dissertation phase, satisfactory annual reviews are also required to ensure ongoing continuation in the program.

5. Program duration and completion

The maximum duration for completing the DMin is six years. With consistent and diligent work it may be completed in 4-5 years.

If DMin candidates complete the coursework satisfactorily, but don't finish the dissertation within the required time they may be awarded the Post-Graduate Diploma in Ministry (for AGST Alliance and for BCM students, or the MBS equivalent).

6. Annual doctoral colloquium at the dissertation phase

AGST Alliance doctoral candidates (whatever their program) are expected to participate in an annual 3 day/2 night colloquium. This is required for DMin candidates once they enter the dissertation research phase. DMin candidates from BCM/MBS are encouraged to participate in the colloquium too.

The purpose of the colloquium is primarily to provide a setting for encouraging you and your peers to 'keep on keeping on', and so bring your research to a successful conclusion sooner rather than later. The focus of the colloquium is thus twofold:

- a) To enable you to talk through the direction and progress of your research with 'critical friends' (doctoral program peers and faculty) – you will be required to make a presentation of your work to date, followed by discussion.
- b) To enhance your research ability, with skills training in areas in which you and your peers sense you need further help.

7. Time commitment

You need to ensure that you are able to give adequate time to the DMin program. This means not just blocking out time during the coursework phase to attend the six day on-campus sessions, but also to allocate significant time for pre- and post-campus study and assignment writing. Later, of course, you will need to allow adequate time to focus on your dissertation research and writing.

If you plan to attend the coursework modules consecutively, this is probably equivalent to about 50% of a typical full-time seminary program load.

Good time management is essential. You will need to restructure your work/ministry load and responsibilities for the duration of the program.

- Some participants have study leave provisions in their organisation/ministry setting.
- Others arrange to cut down their work/ministry load.
- Others take unpaid leave.

We urge you to use the Student Support Framework Memorandum of Understanding so that the major stakeholders in your program – your family, organisation and/or local church leaders – are informed and committed to help you complete the program well.

8. DMin study skills

Getting back into study, especially as a mature-age student, can be daunting. To help you thrive in your program, we provide specific research and writing skills workshop activities. These are designed to help you review and/or develop the skills to do effective research and writing, and to use library and internet facilities well. The workshop activities are usually appended to the on-campus sessions of several of the modules.

In addition, a specialised research methods module is part of the DMin program, to ensure students are well prepared for their dissertation research.

9. Program resources

It is important that you ensure you have good access to resources for your program. If you are in the DMin program as a BCM or MBS student, you have ready student access to the library of your seminary. BCM students are required to pay a library fee of RM50 a term or RM150 a year. MBS students are required to pay a library fee of RM325 per semester.

AGST Alliance students have access to the libraries of a number of seminaries – BCM and MBS, as well as seminaries within the AGST Alliance consortium and others. You should register with at least one seminary library. A list of possibilities is available.

A growing number of program and research resources are accessible on-line. We will help you access these. And we encourage you to share your discoveries with fellow-students, too.

10. Language medium

English is the medium of instruction for the DMin program. Most often, students will complete their research and writing in English.

However, there is scope for some work in the program to be completed in another language, subject to special conditions and on a case-by-case basis. For example:

- some coursework module assignments may be written in a language other than English, with the approval of the module facilitator.
- and/or, a dissertation may be written in a language other than English if a suitable supervisor is located and we know that we will be able to find examiners fluent in the language. An English translation of at least major parts of the work will be required; and an oral examination is likely to be necessary.

Talk with the DMin Program Director to discuss this possibility.

11. Cross-credit of courses

In the coursework phase of the DMin program, students may request to cross-credit courses completed at the appropriate academic level at other accredited institutions.

Up to two approved courses (for a maximum of 4 credits [AGST Alliance]/5 credits [BCM/MBS]) from other programs of the partner seminaries or from other accredited institutions may replace non-core DMin modules. Cross-credited courses need to be at the appropriate academic level.

Speak with the program director if you wish to request to cross-credit courses into your DMin program.

12. Finance matters

Check with your seminary for the details about fees and the payment schedule.

Note that you will need to factor other significant costs into your program, beyond the program fees – for travel, accommodation, resources, etc. (An outline of these costs may be available from your seminary.)

Check also with your seminary on whether any scholarship money is available. Even if none is directly available, we will actively support student applications to trusts/foundations for financial assistance.

13. Immigration matters

It is essential that you check carefully about immigration regulations well in advance of the on-campus sessions of coursework modules being conducted in a country other than your own. This is your responsibility.

Usually, when you travel to another country from your own to attend the module on-campus sessions, a social visit pass is adequate. (You are officially attending a short training program.)

Your seminary is able to provide official letters if required for immigration purposes.

Ensure that you have at least six months validity in your passport prior to attending the on-campus sessions of modules or before study centre/library visits in other countries. We don't want to hear that you have not been allowed to board your flight for this reason. (It has happened to students coming to on-campus sessions in our partner seminaries!)

Expectations of DMin level study

What level and quality of study is expected for this DMin program? This question may be answered in two ways.

A. Generic expectations

As a doctorate, our DMin is an advanced degree which will be recognised internationally. The academic expectations are close to those for an AGST Alliance PhD, except that whereas the PhD tends to have universal application (i.e. it contributes to the theory of the field), the DMin tends to have local application (i.e. it addresses concerns in a specific, local setting).

Think of the expectations as ‘becoming a full professional in your field’. In practice this means:

- You have something to say your peers want to listen to.
- You have a command of what is happening in your subject so that you can evaluate the worth of what others are doing.
- You have the astuteness to discover where you can make a useful contribution.
- You have mastery of appropriate techniques that are currently being used, and also be aware of their limitations.
- You are able to communicate your results effectively in the professional arena.
- All this is carried out in an international context – your professional peer group is world-wide.

(adapted from Phillips and Pugh, How to get a Ph.D., Buckingham: Open University Press, 1987, pp. 18-19)

B. Expectations in an evangelical Christian institution

The above guidelines are generic. But there is another essential dimension to bear in mind in your doctoral study through AGST Alliance, BCM or MBS.

Doctoral study within an evangelical Christian institution is founded on an understanding of knowledge that is more than academic. In the Bible, acquiring and exercising wisdom involves a combination of faith, reason and action. It requires

- right belief and committed trust in the living God (“the fear of the LORD is the first principle of wisdom”),
- creative and humble use of the rationality God has granted to humans made in his own image, and
- appropriate living in the world to reflect God’s calling and participate in God’s mission.

Doctoral study, therefore, pursued on such a foundation, will be confessional, rational and missional. For a Christian, doctoral study is one dimension of what it means to “love the LORD your God with all your heart and mind and soul and strength.”

Within such a framework of Christian identity and commitment, it is assumed that our doctoral students will be recognised as Christians maturing in faithful discipleship and having leadership skills as experienced practitioners in aspects of ministry. The following qualities of their doctoral work will be demonstrated through appropriate examination:

1. Comprehensive understanding, having demonstrated a breadth of systematic understanding of a field of study relevant to an aspect of Christian ministry, and mastery of the skills and methods of research and applied reflective practice appropriate to that field and ministry context.
2. Critical skills, faithfully exercised, having demonstrated their capacity for critical analysis, independent evaluation of primary and secondary source materials, ability to integrate academic insights and professional practice in their ministry context, and their commitment to exercise such skills on the foundation of biblical faithfulness to Jesus Christ and his church.

3. Serious inquiry with integrity, having demonstrated the ability to conceive, design and implement a substantial project of inquiry into professional practice, and to do so with Christian and scholarly integrity.
4. Creative and original contribution, having produced, as a result of such disciplined inquiry, a creative and original contribution that extends the frontiers of knowledge, or develops fresh insights and generates new perspectives on professional practice, some of which merit national or international refereed publication.
5. Contextual relevance, having shown their capacity, in the course of their doctoral program and in their expectation of its future potential, for biblically-informed critical engagement with the realities of their professional ministry contexts.
6. Ability to communicate, having shown an ability in communicating about their area of expertise to peer-level academic and professional audiences, and, where appropriate, to non-specialists in local Christian communities and the wider society in culturally relevant ways, including their mother tongue, for example through teaching, preaching or writing.
7. Missional impact, having demonstrated that the doctoral work produced promotes the kingdom of God and advances the mission of the church (both local and global), especially through significant enhancement of professional practice and leadership for transformational service.

All these seven elements are expressed to the glory of God.

(The section above has been adapted from The Beirut Benchmarks for Professional Doctorates, developed by ICETE, 2010/2011.)

If this seems daunting, don't despair! We will help you acquire and sharpen your ability in this areas, as you bring diligence and discipline to the learning process.

Don't hesitate to seek help early to cope with the expectations.

Note: The Post-Graduate Diploma in Ministry (AGST Alliance and BCM) or the MBS equivalent is awarded to students who have completed the DMin coursework but not the dissertation. Thus, it is a credible qualification, giving recognition for achieving at the DMin level. Students who receive the Post-Graduate Diploma in Ministry because they have not completed the DMin dissertation should not feel that they have a 'lesser' qualification or have failed to come up to an acceptable DMin standard. It is 'simply' an incomplete DMin.

Assessment and grading scale

Coursework

The coursework for the DMin is assessed on the same basis as the AGST Alliance MTh/EdD programs.

Typically, six main areas are considered when work is assessed for higher education programs such as these:

1. Evidence of knowledge and understanding of the subject and/or texts

To what extent does the assignment demonstrate breadth of knowledge, coverage of the topic, depth of understanding of issues, accuracy of information?

2. Evidence of reading and use of other appropriate resources

To what extent does the assignment show appropriate use of relevant, well-chosen and both classic and up-to-date literature and/or other source material, and an appropriate and accurate method of referencing?

3. Quality of critical analysis and interpretation

To what extent does the assignment demonstrate the ability to identify and analyse underlying issues, problems and questions and relate these to one another; to evaluate arguments and the evidence for them and examine their implications; to identify and to evaluate different perspectives?

4. Quality of argument and structure (planning) of the assignment

To what extent does the assignment answer the question in a clear and direct way; form a coherent argument; develop in a logical and convincing way, relating the introduction to the conclusion?

5. Evidence of critical reflection, personal or ministerial application

To what extent does the assignment demonstrate critical reflection on evaluation of personal and/or ministerial practice?

6. Quality of communication skills and presentation

To what extent does the assignment reflect appropriate standards and academic conventions in relation to the mode of presentation, including clarity of expression, spelling, grammar and syntax, referencing and bibliography?

[These categories and following criteria have been adapted from R. Ackroyd and D. Major, Shaping the tools: Study Skills in Theology, London: Dartman, Longman & Todd, 1999.]

Notice above the recurring phrase 'to what extent'. It is the extent to which the assessment criteria are demonstrated that determines the grade awarded. Thus, the grading scale for the coursework of the DMin – with the assessment criteria for each of these six areas – is shown on the following page.

Grade	Criteria
High Distinction (HD)	Excellent quality – indicating... <ol style="list-style-type: none"> <li>1. excellent coverage of the topic; accurate in detail offering sophisticated, even original insights; excellent use of examples to demonstrate understanding; clear understanding of complex ideas and issues.</li> <li>2. extensively researched in breadth and/or depth and accurately referenced.</li> <li>3. imaginative, insightful, original, creative interpretations; impressive level of critical analysis and evaluation.</li> <li>4. a persuasive, authoritative coherent argument supported throughout by evidence, ability to show limitations of approaches; systematic and cogent structure.</li> <li>5. evidence of sophisticated, critical reflection and evaluation of personal and/or professional ministerial practice.</li> <li>6. written with flair and panache; fluent and confident; lucidly expressed and accurate in spelling and grammar.</li> </ol>
Distinction (D)	Very good quality – indicating... <ol style="list-style-type: none"> <li>1. high level of coverage of the topic; accurate in detail with some originality and innovative insights; good use of examples to demonstrate understanding; clear understanding of complex ideas and issues.</li> <li>2. widely researched in breadth and/or depth and accurately referenced.</li> <li>3. insightful and creative interpretations; high level of critical analysis and evaluation.</li> <li>4. a persuasive, coherent argument supported throughout by evidence, some ability to show limitations of approaches; systematic and cogent structure.</li> <li>5. evidence of a high level of critical reflection and evaluation of personal and/or professional ministerial practice.</li> <li>6. fluent and confident; lucidly expressed and accurate in spelling and grammar.</li> </ol>
Credit (C)	Good quality – indicating... <ol style="list-style-type: none"> <li>1. topic is covered in depth; detail is accurate throughout; independence of thought; good identification and understanding of complex ideas and issues.</li> <li>2. well researched and referenced.</li> <li>3. perceptive, thoughtful interpretations; good level of critical analysis and evaluation; systematic analysis of source material.</li> <li>4. presence of a cogent argument, supported throughout by evidence; the work is well structured.</li> <li>5. evidence of critical reflection, understanding and evaluation of personal and/or professional ministerial practice.</li> <li>6. lucidly expressed and accurate in spelling and grammar.</li> </ol>
Pass (P)	Satisfactory quality – indicating... <ol style="list-style-type: none"> <li>1. most relevant issues are covered with reasonable understanding; adequate knowledge is demonstrated; most central issues are identified.</li> <li>2. reasonable range of reading, sources not always explicit; not all referencing may be accurate.</li> <li>3. material from a variety of sources is drawn together in interesting ways; development of analysis may not be consistent, giving way to description.</li> <li>4. demonstrates the ability to construct an argument and present supporting evidence; links between introduction and conclusion are made.</li> <li>5. some attempt is made to reflect critically and evaluate; reference is made to personal and/or professional/ministerial practice.</li> <li>6. clearly written; there may be occasional errors in spelling and grammar.</li> </ol>
Borderline Pass (BP)	Of doubtful quality for a pass, but there are just enough strengths to allow a pass grade to be awarded rather than Fail.
Fail (F)	Unsatisfactory quality – indicating... <ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>♦ Either the work is unsatisfactory, deficient and/or insufficient in many respects, relating to both mastery of content and expression;</li> <li>♦ Or work is not submitted, is excessively late, or has been produced by cheating.</li> </ul>

Incomplete (I)	[Distinguished from a Fail] Work is not completed/submitted

For the purposes of comparison, this grading scale may be compared with other frequently used grading scales. Note that these are comparisons are only approximate:

Grade	Common descriptor	Percentage equivalent	Letter equivalent	Grade point equivalent
High Distinction	Excellent	85% +	A	4.0
Distinction	Very good	75-84%	B+/A-	3.6
Credit	Good	65-74%	B/B+	3.2
Pass	Satisfactory	50-64%	C+/B-	2.6
Borderline pass	Marginal	40-50%	C-/C	2.0 - 2.3
Fail	Unsatisfactory	Below 40%	F	< 2.0
